

23 January 2012

There are specific H&S requirements which are applicable to British Eventing Events and some other activities and venues, whether you are trading or providing a service.

Please fill in the form on the reverse of this letter and, together with copies of the relevant insurance, which undisputedly show their validity dates and clearly refer to your business, as well as other documentation as specified, and return them to Jeremy Langlands. Based upon the correct and valid documents being received, you will be allocated an approval number, which expires with your insurance cover.

Once the approval number has been allocated, please quote the number on the application form that accompanies this letter. Whilst this may appear rather a long winded system, the advantage of this scheme is that the approval number can be utilized at any event where Jeremy Langlands officiates.

For traders who do not have adequate insurance, three possible options are outlined below. Naturally you must carry out your own research.

Please note that all tradestands will still be liable to produce all the documentation to any H&S Enforcement Officer that visits the event so these must accompany you to the site.
